Grenfell Tower Fire

Presented by Commissioner Dany Cotton and Director Tom George, London Fire Brigade

This presentation will review and detail the June 14, 2017 Grenfell Tower fire that burned for 60 hours and resulted in 71 deaths. More than 250 London Fire Brigade firefighters and 70 fire engines were involved from stations across London in efforts to control the fire.

Preparing For and Responding to a Terrorist Attack

Presented by Commissioner Dany Cotton and Director Tom George, London Fire Brigade

London had five major terrorist related attacks in 2017 including the March 22: Westminster Bridge vehicle attack and stabbing; May 22: Manchester bombing; June 3: London Bridge attack; June 19: Van hits pedestrians outside mosque; and September 15: Blast on London Underground train. This presentation will review how to best prepare and respond to a potential terrorist attack and the challenges these instances pose to an ever-increasing threat to public safety.

Dany Cotton joined the fire service in 1988 and has since gone on to become one of the highest ranking women firefighters in Europe. She has served in a number of different roles and departments, including being the Director for Safety and Assurance prior to her recent promotion. Dany has attended many high-profile operational incidents, including the Clapham train crash in 1988, just a few weeks after leaving training school. She took charge of London Fire Brigade in January 2017, and in the first six months of her role, led the Brigade during major incidents, including the unprecedented fire at Grenfell Tower and the terrorist incidents at Westminster, London Bridge and Finsbury Park.

Dany has been the Chair of Women in the Fire Service (WFS) for several years. In 2004, Dany was awarded the Queen's Fire Service Medal and in 2011 was voted among the most influential women in London. Her hobbies include skiing, cycling and spending time with family and friends.

Director Tom George has been with London Fire Brigade since 1987 when he started as a firefighter. He has worked his way through the ranks and is now the Director of Operations and reports directly to the Commissioner. Director George has a £220m budget and, is responsible for the Brigade's 103 fire stations (including the river station) across the 32 boroughs of London and the City. He is also responsible for Fire Safety (Community Safety and Statutory Fire Safety), all of the Brigade's Youth Services, Brigade Control and Mobilizing, the Resource Management Centre, the Fire Investigation Team, the Establishment and Performance Team and the Brigade's Central Operations Team. He is a highly experienced 'Gold' command officer and has taken charge of numerous challenging and demanding incidents.

You Say More Than You Think: How to Use the New Body Language to Instantly Upgrade Your Rapport & Influence with Everyone You Interact With

Presented by Janine Driver, Body Language Institute

Don't you know at least one person who easily connects with almost everyone she or he meets? These natural rapport-builders are able to create a sense of trust and understanding practically instantly. Imagine how powerful it would be to your professional (and personal) life if you knew the verbal and non-verbal secrets that the greatest leaders, top sales people, and highly regarded corporate titans use regularly to break down barriers to and build up trust? After all, research has shown that when we have rapport with someone, previously locked-doors will suddenly open for you, because that person wants to help YOU be successful!

In this dynamic and interactive workshop, you'll learn to get support for your proposals and ideas when you increase the one skill that always makes the top of the list when predicting likability; influence others using an easy-to-master, 200-year-old, technique; turn good relationships with your staff and suppliers into dangerously awesome relationships and use "The Belly Button Rule," "The 3 Power Zones," and "Move Your Body, Move Your Mind" success moves to increase your perceived value and decrease stress.

Imagine the impact you will have on others when you are inspired to look at the world differently. Come early and grab a good seat to experience the exciting and inspiring NY Times best-selling author and award winning Speaker, Janine Driver!

JANINE DRIVER is the New York Times Best Selling author of YOU SAY MORE THAN YOU THINK (Random House), and most recently YOU CAN'T LIE TO ME (HarperOne), popular keynote speaker, media expert for NBC's TODAY Show, 20/20, CNN, Anderson Cooper, Katie, Dr. Drew on HLN, and the Dr. Oz Show, and she's the founder, president, and lead instructor for the Body Language Institute (BLI). The Fire Service Instructor: Leading Change Through Training Presented by Devon Wells, Vice President, ISFSI

The fire service is in a state of change. How do we, as instructors, lead this change? How do we get firefighters to look at things differently? How do we change from a procedure-based fire service to a principle-based fire service? Research has identified how the fire service can provide emergency response in a more safe, effective and efficient way. Challenging traditional methods of firefighting can be difficult. Who is going to be the change-agent of this paradigm shift? It starts with training officers, instructors and company officers—the most important positions involved in leading change and presenting new information.

Devon Wells is the first vice president of the International Society of Fire Service Instructors (ISFSI) and the former fire chief for Hood River, OR, Fire & EMS. He is a graduate of the National Fire Academy's Executive Fire Officer Program and is a member of the instructor cadre for the ISFSI course "Principles of Modern Fire Attack." He sits on the NFPA 1700 technical panel and manages the Facebook page "Rural Fire Officer."
